Commissioner Wagner began by stating that today is the twelfth discussion that the Council has had on the proposed changes. The purpose of this special work session is to give Council members another opportunity to have a less formal discussion, hit some of the highlights from the public feedback, and answer any remaining questions.

Commissioner Wagner shared that in addition to all of the public discussions, he has also had a conference call with each Council member as well as conversations with key stakeholders.

He then answered Council member questions on concerns with the student teaching residency recommendation, school-nurse teachers, flexibility around shortage areas, how to measure cultural competency, and ongoing professional learning.

At the November 27th meeting, the Council will receive a tracked version of the proposed regulation that shows the changes proposed since the public comment period; an updated table with additional column that shows RIDE's response to each of the categories of comments; and a plain English FAQ document that addresses the topics that have received the most attention.

The goal is to have the regulations approved at the December 4th meeting, with December 18th as a back-up date.
